

Miss Alexandra Flowerton of New York city, who received a graphic first hand account of the lost navy balloonists. Lieut. L. A. Kloor, Jr., wrote details to her from Moose Factory, Canada.
Photo, International.

Lieut. S. A. Farrell and his family. This one of the lost navy balloonists was the one who suffered most and he urged his companions to leave him and save themselves.
Photo, International.

Portrait of Mrs. Walter Hinton, wife of one of the lost navy balloonists who landed in the Canadian wilds.
Photo, International.

Mrs. James W. Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Gilbert, one of the Christmas holiday brides.
Photo, E. F. Foley.

Sir Ernest Hodder-Williams, English publisher, and Lady Hodder-Williams, just before sailing for home on the Lapland.
Copyright, Keystone View.

The Marquis and Marquise de la Tourette, photographed aboard La Lorraine just before they sailed. The Marquise was Miss Mary Glover.
Photo, Paul Thompson.

Mrs. John Curtis Walker, one of Washington's recent brides. She was Miss Helen Claxton, daughter of the U. S. Commissioner of Education and Mrs. Philander P. Claxton.
Copyright, Harris & Ewing.

Above—Some of the Spence School alumnae who appeared in "Forty Winks" at the Plaza for charity: Left to right—The Misses Helena Ogden, Clara Workum, Peggy Stout, Mrs. Tappan Fairchild, Susan Coppel, Helen L. Dudgeon and Gertrude Ogden.

Mme. Cyrena Van Gordon, a Chicago Opera Company star, photographed as she appears in "Aida."

Margery Maxwell, in a male role in "Romeo and Juliet," with the Chicago Opera Company.

Miss Cynthia Bigelow and Miss Susan Steell as the Fairy Princess and Fairy Prince in "Forty Winks," the Spence School alumnae play given at the Plaza to aid a babies' home.
Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

At right—Mme. Phylene Falco, one of the new operatic stars, to appear next week with the Chicago company.